

WEBINAR WEDNESDAYS

IBEW CANADA

Greetings,

During these unprecedented times, all of us have had to make adjustments in our everyday lives at work and at home. This has also changed how we, the IBEW, offer training and other educational workshops to our local union and members. In May of this year, we launched a series of webinars titled “Webinar Wednesdays”. These webinars are hosted by our Education Department, covering a variety of topics about the IBEW and the labour movement. We’ve hosted a webinar introducing the IBEW Canada First District Education Department, as well as a webinar briefly explaining the Structure of the IBEW. These webinars are brief information sessions and are not certified courses. They are intended to provide introductory information and give IBEW members across the country a way to stay engaged and connected to their union during these unusual times. And we want you to join us!

The webinars are approximately one hour in length and are usually offered every two weeks; one held at a more convenient time for our members in Eastern Canada and one at a more convenient time for our members in Western Canada. The next new webinar series will be delivered in two parts. The first new webinar is titled “Canadian Labour History – Part I” and will introduce participants to the labour conditions, circumstances, and events that initiated the labour movement, propelled us forward, and will conclude at the end of WWII. The second new webinar is titled “Canadian Labour History – Part II” and will pick-up from the end of WWII and engage participants in more recent events across Canada that have shaped the progress of the labour movement. The registration links for each of these webinar topics are listed below.

After registering for any of the above webinars, you will receive a confirmation email from Amanda Pacheco, Director of the Education Department, containing information about joining the meeting.

These webinars are open to all IBEW members across Canada and we encourage you to join us. Details on the subjects covered and how to register will be communicated to local union offices and can also be found on our IBEW Canada Facebook and Twitter accounts and our website. This is a great opportunity to stay connected to your union and become a more informed member.

Stay safe and stay healthy.
